Overview

Bellybrush is town in the Green Delta. It is the primary suburb of the human city of Ack, located about a half-mile east along the Kingsroad. The town was founded in 701bc as a retirement community for the fisherfolk of Ack, and quickly grew into an agricultural community in its own right, focused around the raising of pigs.

History

Founding of Bellybrush

The town of Bellybrush was founded in 701bc by retiring fisherfolk.

Bellybrush During the Lull

The Lull was the brief period of time after the Age of Heroes, but before the start of the Great Wars, roughly 20pc to 40pc. It was a peaceful and prosperous time for Bellybrush, which had served as a base for many of the heroes of the previous age.

Those heroes, now retired, helped humans begin to take their first steps toward recovering from the Collapse here in town. For example, in 22pc, the Chandlers Guild office, at the time the organization's headquarters, was where the wax clock was invented.

In 34pc, the first issue of the newspaper The Bellybrush Review was printed.

In 53pc, Barnabus Trent moved to town and established Ye Olde Curio shop.

Bellybrush During the Great Wars

In 70pc, Nell was found on the steps of the orphanage.

In 74pc, The Bellybrush Review ran an expose demonstrating the Red Union, then the "Red Ward," did not provide any services.

In 75pc, the editors of The Bellybrush Review are found guilty and hanged for libel.

In 76pc, Nell begins to work part-time for Barnabus Trent at Ye Olde Curio Shop.

Bellybrush During the Reconstruction Era

On the 14th of Sleeting, 80pc, the Chandlers Guild bought the printing press formerly owned by The Bellybrush Review

The poles are covered in death masks, a mundane treasure used to remember those executed for their crimes.

Near where Gibbet Street intersects with the Walk, there is an assemblage of old wooden houses that have grown into one property. Among the residents are Wadren Smith, a 16-year-old orphan who raises pigs, and Holman Holder, a 55-year old who "steals" those pigs, as a prank. Nell also spends a lot of time here, even though she lives at the orphanage.
