DRAFT Belcaer Gazetteer

This gazetteer is a draft: it is unfinished and that should be considered when reading it. Special attention should be paid to text marked DRAFT, EDIT, or TK.

This gazetteer is part of a larger project, Teraum. Teraum is a tragically funny fantasy world to be implemented as role-playing game resources, stories, and radioplays. DRAFT Overview

> It's fortunate that mesa is there. Without Belcaer, there wouldn't be a notable town for miles. And I'd hate to think of what folk would get up to back in those fens if there weren't any sort of guard, considering the mischief we've got now.

Belcaer is a small town situated on a limestone mesa overlooking the trade road between Ack and Tayopopopolis, two distant cities. It is in a region known as the Gloaming, where miles of freshwater marshland give the land a permanent pallour.

There are about 400 residents. Most work in retail or service in town.

DRAFT History

DRAFT Founding of Belcaer

The town of Belcaer was founded in 223bc by humans traveling through the region, between the Central Plains to the north and Unseen Sea (actually a desert) to the south. For many decades it was only a collection of inns and houses built next to the mesa.

DRAFT Contemporary Belcaer

The prosperity of the Green Delta in recent years has increased how many people are traveling through the Gloaming, and Belcaer has begun to grow. Unfortunately, the limited size of the mesa on which the town is built is requiring some creative construction, like the recently constructed Guildhouse.

Crime followed prosperity. Not only are there more bandits on the road, but an increase amount of smuggling and other crime is occuring up in the town.

DRAFT Areas

DRAFT Streets

DRAFT High Street High Street is Belcaer's main street. It leads from the trade road up the northeastern side of the mesa. At the base of the mesa, the road is built from piled earth, while as it rises it becomes cut into the mesa. At the top, it leads south, and many of the town's stores and taverns are built on it.

Near where high street meets the trade road, there is an informal marketplaces. Here, passing traders make deals with each other, hoping to make the most of their journey. A person who risks a day shopping may find something quite valuable.

DRAFT Trade Road The trade road is a road that cuts roughly north-south through the Gloaming, between the Central Plains and Unseen Sea.

Belcaer is situated next to it, about halfway through the region.

DRAFT Buildings

DRAFT Kerr Stoneworks A complex of connected stone buildings near the middle of town, Kerr Stoneworks is one of the town's few industries. Here, Gerdga Kerr handles the mining and export of limestone that she quarries from inside the mesa. Recently, the Red Union has been pressuring her to export even more limestone.

DRAFT The Guildhouse The Guildhouse is one of the largest, most recent, and most distinct buildings in town. It was constructed in 76pc from pine harvested from the region. It juts over the lip of the mesa, supported by an intricate latice of timber beams.

DRAFT Landmarks

DRAFT Notable Organizations and People

DRAFT Abeth Harbrook

Abeth Harbrook is the senior representative of the Chandlers Guild in town. She is not from, nor does she enjoy, the town or region.

DRAFT Plots

- The Red Union is pressuring Gerdga Kerr to export more limestone to Ack. To do so, she'll have to either mine mesas outside of town, which could be attacked by bandits, or mine under the town, which could cause it to collapse.
